CLARK READINGS CLOSE.

Large Audiences Hear His Last Two Recitals.

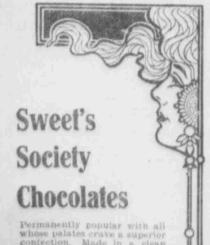

Prof. S. H. Clark's course of dramatic recitals closed last evening after a most successful season. He stated to a "News" reporter last evening his pleasure in appearing before Salt Lake audiences; they are so attentive, so appreciative, he said. Too late to make an changes in the program. Prof. Clark had been asked if he could not repeat his dramatic recital on Job, given here on the occasion of his last visit. He said he would have gladly repeated it, or given one on the Sons of Solomon had the matter been called to his attention before. However, when he came to Salt Lake again, he would give a recital from one of the great characters of Bible history.

The distinguished savant gave an enmatic recitals closed last evening after history.

The distinguished savant gave an entertaining talk to the university students yesterday morning, on "Effective Public Speaking." He objected to the present plan of intercollegiate debating, as in the desire to get away with the victory, many good things are lost sight of, and all sorts of dodges are resorted to, said the speaker; "We have a long way to go before lost sight of, and all sorts of dodges are resorted to, said the speaker; "We have a long way to go before we get a condition of respectability in our athletics of the present day, and the same thing applies equally well to debating and public speaking. Furthermore, the advantage in the study of English, rhetoric and oratory lies in the training of the students' perception of the relative value of things, and his ability to arrange and classify arguments and facts in the most effective manner. This ability, is of untold value, no matter what course the student is taking in school, and is of still greater value after he has graduated, regardless of the profession he or she may follow.

In the afternoon, the rhetorician was as, usual, at his best in the recitai, in epitome, of Balzac's "Eugenie Grandet." The hero of this novel is an deal type of human greed; and the entire thread of discourse leads up o a culmination not merely dramatic, but ideally tragic in its conception, where the miser faces his gold at leath. The speaker held in way of omment that there is a species of hriftiness that is carried to such an atreme as to merge into a condition nothing less than the felonious. The recital was an able presentation of the novel, both in synopsis and in a terpretation.

of the novel, both in synopsis and in interpretation.

The hall was crowded again last evening, when Prof. Clark delivered his final literary effort, in recital of Don Jose Eghegary's Spanish drama of "Marianna." The speaker called attention to the quick wit, and ready prilliancy of the writer as well as to the fact that the love making in novels is entirely different to the natural way of doing things (at which the audience laughed). At the same time the writer's manner of presenting things placed him away on the upper plane of fiction writers. The author was an avowed follower of Isben who the lecturer held was, in some points, superior to even Shake-Isben who the lecturer held was, in some points, superior to even Shake-speare. Like Ibsen, Don Jose dwells largely on the theme that the sins of the fathers are visited on descending generations, and wreaths his scenes in a rich beauty of poetic thought. Prof. Clark held that Don Jose was a master of stage technique, and his characters real, living people.

The most dangerous wound started just behind the left ear and extended to a point near the chin, severing the ear and leaving the cheek wide open so that the jaw bone and teeth could be seen. After committing the murderous assault Schimizo I ran up the alley and disappeared and so far the police have been unable to locate him and his fellow countrymen refuse to give any information as to his whereabouts.

Ariki was taken to the emergency hospital where Police Surgeon F. B. Steele closed up the wounds and then ordered the man sent to St. Mark's hospitel. This morning it was reported that his condition was serious, but his recovery is not doubted. He was so weakened from loss of blood he was unable to give the police any information as to the exact cause of the conflict or where his assailant could be found.

GROCERS CURTAIL CREDIT.

Retail Merchants' Association Decides That Thirty Days is Long Enough.

The Salt Lake Retail Merchants' association has unanimously decided on prompt payments on the part of customers and the curtailment of credit generally. This action was taken at a largely atteaded meeting of the association held in the Auerbach building this week. The principal subject discussed was that of credit. It was shown that may people abused this privilege and delayed making settlement beyond all reason. The usual weekly or thirty days time in which to make payment for grocery and butchers' bills was by some ignored. Merchants reported that many of their customers make only partial payments, leaving a balance to be carried forward, which as a usual thing keeps increasing menth after mouth until the retailer finds himself burdened with a load of bills due and unnotad amounting to hundreds, and in some cases thousands of dollars.

It was the sense of the meeting that this load, the retail merchants find unable to carry any longer. They declared that they are emphatically and unitedly defermined that this state of ociation has unanimously decided on butter, egg and produce houses are adopting the system of weekly collec-tions and green groceries are cash. With this condition confronting them, the retailers now say they find it necessary to insist on full settlement at least once every 30 days.

DOUBLE SURPRISE.

A unique coincidence happened during the week, through the similar inspirations of two friends to celebrate each other's birthday anniversary. That of Mrs. E. D. Roundy occurred on Tuesday, and of Mrs. E.mna Jesson on Wednesday of this week, and without being aware of the other's intention, each friend planned a surprise party for the separate anniversary. Mrs. Roundy's surprise came first, when she was made impremptu guest of honor at a large gathering of friends, who, with herself spent a most delightful evening, with music, speeche and a generally social time. Refreshments were served, and Mrs. Roundy received many gifts.

Mrs. Jenson's surprise came on Wednesday, when she, in turn, was guest of honor at a second gathering of multinal friends, the time being most pleasantly spent, and a number of birthday offerings being presented. Assisting the two prime movers in the separate functions were Mrs. Arthur F. Barnes and Mrs. Bertha Jenson. ng the week, through the similar in-merical club, to his friends and to the State of Utah.

Governor Spry responded with a brief but well worded speech. He complimented Mr. Newhouse on the work he had accomplished for the city of Salt Lake and the State of Utab, and said it was largely due to the efforts of such men as Mr. Newhouse that an opportunity is being afforded for the young men of the state to remain in the state, by the development of mines and the crection of structures which provided employment for the young men. The governor said such men as Mr. Newhouse, the Walker Brothers. W. S.
